

Judith Rycus, PhD

Dr. Judith Rycus is co-founder and Program Director of the Institute for Human Services and the Child Maltreatment Policy Resource Center in Columbus, Ohio. She has worked for five decades in the child welfare profession as an organizational development specialist, program developer, program evaluator, trainer, training manager, consultant, and mentor. She has worked with government and non-government organizations and professionals throughout the United States and Canada and in many nations internationally. She is a widely published author, having written books, articles, training curricula, and policy white papers on multiple topics and dilemmas in child protection and child maltreatment policy and practice.